CONDITIONS OF SALE.

Please Read Sale Terms Before Bidding.

This is a bona-fide public sale, for prompt cash settlement, and irresponsible persons who are not sure whether they can pay for what they bid on, are asked not to bid. The cataloguer has taken special pains to describe each lot accurately. Errors will be corrected, but he reserves the sole right to decide upon any claims. No corrections or refunds will be made, and no lots can be returned, unless the bidder submits his case in writing within 30 days of the date of the sale.

Coins and medals are sold at so much per PIECE, and no lot will be separated. You cannot buy a few pieces out of a lot but must buy all of it. The auctioneer will accept no bid under 10 cents to start a lot where that lot contains only one piece; nor will he accept any advance under 5c on any lot containing but one piece; after the price has reached $2. no advance under 10c will be accepted on any lot containing one piece; after $5.00 the bid must advance 25c each time; after $10 no bid under 50c.

Our rules regarding lots containing more than one piece will remain unchanged and the same as before.

Auction sales are strictly for cash. Parties unknown to me and bidding for the first time, must give bank or other reliable reference, or their bids will not be executed.

Forward your bids as early as possible, as thousands of bids have to be entered. Do not make ridiculously low bids, such as 10c. and 15c. on foreign silver coins worth severaltimes over as bullion. Write your bids plainly, with a pen if practicable.

Where the number of pieces in a lot is not given after the description, there is but one piece in the lot.

Be sure you bid on the lot you wish to buy. We cannot correct such errors.

All coins, etc., are genuine unless otherwise described.

A charge of 5% will be made to cover packing but where the parcel is bulky an additional packing charge will be made. No charge made for bidding except for lots actually purchased. Remit by money order or New York draft.

If any further information is required as to valuation of lots, or how to bid, please write the cataloguer, THOMAS L. ELDER.

Important Notice. We keep two books of the sale recording each lot as sold, and we will not accept any sale records from outsiders. Our records are final.

No priced catalogue will be furnished of this sale.

HOW THE PAULUS HOOK CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL WAS WON BY MAJOR HENRY LEE.

If you will turn to page 263 in Betts Colonial Medals you will find the following description of a medal awarded for valor in 1779 to Major Henry Lee: "1779. Obv. Henrico Lee Legionis Equit. Praefecto, and, below completing the circle, Comitia Americana (The American Congress to Henry Lee Commanding a Battalion of Cavalry). Bust of Lee in profile to the right, his hair tied with a bow; he wears a military uniform. On the truncation J. Wright. Rx. Inscription in ten lines, the ends of the eighth curving upward. Non obstantib. Fluminibus Vallis Astutia & Virtute Bellica Parva Manu Hostes Vicit Victosq. Armis Humanitate Devinxit. In Mem pugn. Ad Paulus Hook Die XIX Aug. 1779 (Notwithstanding rivers and ramparts, with a small band of men he conquered the enemy by his sagacity and valor, and bound to him by his humanity those whom he overcame by arms. Betts 575."

The editor is pleased to give a short sketch of Major Lee with an account of how the daring action against Paulus Hook was successfully carried out. The notes appended herewith do not give a definite idea of the difficulties encountered by the Lee party both in the advance, in the attack and in the long and tedious retreat through swamps and woods, encumbered with the several hundred captives, but the record is nevertheless interesting.

Henry Lee, commonly known as "Light-Horse Harry" was born in Leesylvania, Westmoreland County, Va., Jan. 29, 1756; graduated at Princeton in 1773. In 1776 he was captain in Bland's cavalry, and joined the main army in 1777 and as commander of "Lees Legion" of horses did distinguished service for the Continental cause during the succeeding years until after the battle of Eutaw Springs when he retired. Later he had a distinguished career in Congress. During the war he was one of Washington's most valued liason officers and, like Colonel Benjamin Tallmadge, was usually found near the enemy lines, where he harassed the English cavalry and likewise received the confidential reports from Washington's spies in New York City. General Greene said of him: "No man, in the progress of the Southern campaign, had equal merit with Lee." He died on Cumberland Island Ga. March 25th, 1818. His most brilliant feat was to attack a protected garrison of English at Paulus Hook, near New York. This episode of the Revolution took place on August 19th, 1779. The hour for the onslaught was three in the morning, or three hours later than that chosen by General Wayne for the brilliant coup against Stony Point. The American party consisted of four hundred infantry, being Virginia and Maryland troops, and one troop of dismounted dragoons. In order to prevent discovery the party had to pass through deep woods and over hills. A forlorn hope preceded the main body and when near the fort plunged into the canal. Firing commenced at once from the blockhouses but these intrepid soldiers broke through all opposition and found an entrance into the main fort, the fort being gained before a piece of artillery could be discharged. Captain Forsyth and Lieut. Armstrong led the advance of the main party with Major Clarke heading the forlorn hope. Captain Handy moved forward in support of the whole body and all objectives were quickly gained. The captured amounted to several hundred British officers and men with their flag. Knowing that help would soon arrive from neighboring British regiments, Lee commenced his march to the American lines. The boats expected were not on hand to receive Lee's force and burdened with his prisoners, necessitating a long roundabout march by troops who were already exhausted by the thirty mile tramp and battle. Soon a body of the enemy made their appearance, and commenced firing on Lee's rear troops. Lieut. Reed was ordered to face them while Lieut. Rudolph took position in a stone house to support the retreat. At this the British retired rapidly into the woods. Lee's loss in the attack was twenty, while that of the British was stated to be about fifty killed and a few wounded. Col. Lee states the Americans showed great humanity to the captured, which conduct he stated was in contrast to the cruelty which had been previously shown toward American prisoners, intimating that the putting to death of the prisoners on the retreat was fully justified. Lt. McCallister was sent to General Washington as the bearer of the captured flag of the fort. Lee states it was his intention to burn the captured barracks but on finding a number of sick soldiers, women and children, the feelings of humanity prevented it. The above are only an outline of the interesting incidents of this daring and successful assault made almost under the guns of the British fleet in New York harbor. British and Hessian troops swarmed on every side but so carefully was the movement carried out that it was completed before its discovery or significance was fully known.

A TREAT FOR MEDAL AND TOKEN COLLECTORS.

In the Havemeyer and the Montpelier Vermont Collection, offered in this catalogue collectors are given opportunities for obtaining a wide variety of interesting and unusual things in the way of plaques, medals and tokens. Mr. Elder in going over these collections has been forcibly impressed with the wide variety of the American medallic and token series and the field offered for numismatic authorship. The field of military medals and tokens is exceptionally large and interesting and so is that of the political series. It is a pity these two have never been covered in the way of books and lists. In this sale the Musical, Washington and Lincoln series are especially valuable, with a good many numbers not in our February sale. There is a very good collection of Hard Times tokens in this present sale, with some which are rare. More medals are listed than in any sale in years.

MEDALS OF THE MUSICAL COMPOSERS.

The musical medals in the Havemeyer portion of this catalogue recall interesting characters in some of the old masters. There is none offered of "Papas Bach" and "Haydn" but there are a number of splendid medals of Mozart, the subtle genius of musical good humour who was born at Salzburg. Mozart's music has sterling dignity yet we always hear in it sooner or later that strain of good will and cheer which is so individual to the author. His March "A La Turca," his "Fantasia in F. Minor," his "Don Giovanni," "Marriage of Figaro", his great symphonies, sonatas and orchestral pieces are all favorites of the writer. Mozart ranks as one of the six greatest musical composers of the world. He died very young, and was a mason. Richard Wagner has fine plaques in this sale. One of them shows the "Lorelei" seated on the proverbial rocks in the sea luring the "Flieglende Hollaender" to his doom. This has reference to his early work "The Flying Dutchman." Franz Liszt, who married the daughter of Wagner, and who conducted the first performance of "Lohengrin" has fine medals in this catalogue. Musical people are familiar with his well known works, the 12 rhapsodies, the symphonic poems, "Faust", "Les Preludes", "Mazeppa" and others. Liszt was said to have been the greatest pianist that ever lived. Then there is a medal of Johann Strauss, the waltz-king, the author of the "Blue Danube," "Roses from the South", "Wiener Blut" and many others of great popularity. His descendant Richard Strauss is even more noted and the author of more intricate and strongly orchestrated works such as "Death and Transfiguration" and other tone poems and the "Jolly Pranks of the Students," the latter far more complicated muscially than the title would suggest, but none the less clever and interesting. We regret the scarcity of medals to Mendelssohn and Johannes Brahms for they too belong to the musical immortals. We have seen their medals but such issues are very rare indeed. We think Lauer includes them in his series. Probably Richard Mayer had them also. Old Professor Oettinger could have told us about this, and about the authors of "Heimkehr Aus Der Fremde", "Merestille Und Gluckleich Fahrt", "Fingal's Cave," Overture "Festival," the great "First Symphony" and the numerous quartettes, quintettes and sextettes.

RECENT NUMISMATIC THEFTS.

If each man who holds coin sales would resign himself to the fact that a certain amount of loss must be suffered by him each year through the disappearance of coins at the sales either through actual theft or otherwise he would find himself in a happier frame of mind about Christmas time. The great body of coin collectors are of course honest and trustworthy. That goes without question. But there are a very few sneak-thieves, who occasionally gain admittance to auction rooms and coin stores. There is little difference in their makeup from that of the bandit who points a revolver at your face and calls "hands up." This editorial would not have been written had we not had unusually heavy losses at our recent sale from one of these thieves. Among the items stolen from our cases or tables at the recent sale were a Kellog & Co. $20 gold coin. Very fine, a Metapontum broad type archaic silver stater, with a wheat-ear; eight U. S. Dimes proofs, in the '60s, a French Lusitania medal and several Gem-Stones. We reckon our recent loss at over $50. This calls to mind another loss we had some months earlier when an interested "numismatist" supplanted two very fine Morelos 8 Real coins, struck in silver with two inferior pieces and stole an Admiral Heyn Medal in silver, worth $50 or more and a two real coin of Zongolica. These pieces we well remember and others may have stuck to the same fingers. Collectors are especially warned against the purchase of the Kellog $20 and the Metapontum Stater, and a reward will be paid for any information which will convict the thief. We have our suspicions and our mailing list will be one or two names shy at our next sale. The thieves if they read this will accept it as a notice to stay away from our vicinity in the future. The gentleman with the very long fingers if he appears again will find us standing over him from the time he enters our place until he leaves it. Will someone kindly page Commissioner McLaughlin?

SERVISS COLLECTION OF PAPER MONEY TO BE SOLD IN THE FALL.

This great collection of early American Paper Money, with several hundred varieties prior to 1825, will, at the request of the owner, be offered in our Fall sale. He decided that there would be a better appreciation shown in cool, rather than hot weather of the exceptional quality of this offering. It is the most important offering of paper money that we have ever catalogued. In the meantime, don't miss the present fine June Sale as it has features of great interest in many lines of numismatics. This is our last sale for five months so we hope for the response that it merits.

THE ORDER OF ST LOUIS FOR CONTRECOEUR, DUMAS AND DELIGNERIS.

Some particulars concerning a notable battle in 1755.

In a few days—about a week from the last session of this sale—will occur the 171st anniversary of the defeat of the English army under General Edward Braddock on the ground now covered by the small city in western Pennsylvania bearing his name. The opening shots of the French and Indian War had already been fired by no less personage than George Washington, his men and a few Indian allies under the Half King. The French had occupied the junction of the Monongahela and the Allegheny and the white lily flag of France flew from the ramparts of Fort Duquesne. The English, not to be brushed aside in their plans to occupy this region, sent two regiments from Ireland, the 44th and 48th, the whole under command of Major General Edward Braddock, the newly commissioned "Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's forces in America." The transports arrived at Hampton Roads early in 1755, but so many delays took place as to the route to be taken to the Ohio and in the gathering together of Colonial troops, guides, the proper supplies, horses and wagons, that the expedition did not get well under way from Fort Cumberland until several months later. Through certain favoritism and graft the regiments instead of marching more easily via Philadelphia were sent over the Blue Ridge mountains from Cumberland, necessitating painful road-cutting through dense forests, difficult bridge building and at times the arduous hoisting of large cannon by block and tackle to surmount stupendous cliffs and crags. An account of this tedious march over a road only a dozen feet wide, with matted weeds, woods or thick undergrowth on all sides, a procedure which at times extended the little army snake-like over five or six miles, may be best left to a dramatist. The Expedition moved at a snails pace and stops were made "to bridge every little rivulet and level every little molehill." The French did not let grass grow under their feet and swift runners brought news daily to the Fort of the progress of the English. At last the army halted and a picked advance force was sent forward, consisting of eighty six officers, including Braddock, his three aides, one of them George Washington, and other notables such as Major Pitcairn, Lt. Col. Gage, afterwards Governor General of Massachusetts; Horatio Gates, Daniel Morgan, and about thirteen hundred rank and file, with several companies of the Virginia militia. The French ambushed and attacked after the English had crossed the Monongahela seven miles east of the present city of Pittsburgh. With their Indian allies they took position in two ravines and on a small hill near the ford, and the English hemmed in by the narrow road and by the flying bullets were in two hours put hors-de-combat, although the English officers behaved bravely and tried again and again to rally their men who were totally unused to this kind of warfare. Braddock, soldier of the old school, stormed, riding to and fro, ordering his men to form in ranks and charge by platoons as though on the fields of Flanders. In a few short hours the English losses were frightful, with the survivors huddled into confused masses, and the ground strewn with hundreds of the dead and scalped. Some of the English never saw an Indian or a Frenchman during the entire engagement. Presently all except a scattering remnant was lost or dispersed and the train, cannon, all the baggage, Braddocks papers, and over $100,000 in gold and specie were captured. Washington had four horses shot from under him and, the other two aids were either killed or badly wounded. Out of the eighty six officers sixty three were killed or disabled; while out of thirteen hundred and seventy three non commissioned officers and privates only four hundred and fifty nine came off unwounded. Braddock was fatally wounded but was born off the field by his men and survived for several days when he expired and was buried at night, the cannon moving over his grave to obliterate it. It was the most appalling defeat suffered by the English in America up to that time. This debacle opened up the entire frontiers of Pennsylvania, Virginia and Ohio to the scourge of the French Indian allies and in less than a year over 1,000 men women and children were tortured, captured, scalped or killed. The annals of this period present some of the most harrowing and gruesome details in modern frontier history. The Quakers in Philadelphia, although appealed to through the Assembly, refused to send aid or protection to the harrassed borders. For this great victory the two French captains who commanded the horde of French and Indians who ambushed the English were rewarded. Beujeu the senior in command was killed by the first fire, but was ably seconded by Captains Dumas and DeLigneris. These two, and Captain Contrecoeur, the commandant at Ft. DuQuesne, were by order of King Louis XV awarded the order of St. Louis. Their fame spread to Montreal, to Quebec and to France. Their portraits may be seen to this day in the Chateau de Ramezay at Montreal. It was not until 1758 that General Archibald Forbes wrested from the French the prized redoubt of Fort DuQuesne, or rather its site, as the French burnt it to ashes on the approach of the large English army and fled to their northern and southern forts. This briefly is the history of Fort DuQuesne, how it was won, why the orders were bestowed on the French victors and how the French power faded from the "gateway of the West." The ninth of July, the fatal day, in the year 1755, is a most important one in the annals of America.

THE LAST SALE UNTIL OCTOBER.

With this catalogue is presented the last opportunity you will have for making bids at our Coin Sales until probably the end of October, or for several months. While this sale is of three sessions, being one session less than our last two sales, we regard this as one of our most interesting sales of the entire year. There is a paucity of real junk and a heavy proportion of very desirable Coins, Medals, Paper Money and Curios. The variety will enable the most casual collector to find pieces of interest and importance. We urge you to take this last opportunity of the present season to make a generous number of bids. In the long run you will do better at auction than by any other method. Dealers cannot keep in stock at all times even common and ordinary coins. Ask any one and he will tell you so; on the contrary, these sales always present things which are out of the ordinary, seldom seen and by this fair competition are readily obtained. Make out a good long list of bids this time, the sort of a list you used to send us in times gone by. Or, better still, attend the sale in person and do your own bidding.

The Russian coins include 2 of Peter the Great and the Swedish one of Charles XII. The Papal States (17) are very fine, having come to me from a wealthy collection.

Quite a number of the medals are superb, among them being the highest grade silver medals minted to celebrate the 50th and 60th anniversaries of Queen Victoria's accession. 8 very fine Papal medals and others of both artistic and historic interest.”
